

Mobile Crisis Response Team

Sometimes life can spiral out of control. But when it's time to make a tough call, we're here to help and offer hope.

If you or someone you know is experiencing or at risk of experiencing a mental health or substance use crisis, CHR's Mobile Crisis Response Team is just a phone call away. Our interdisciplinary team of mental health professionals is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week to provide short-term crisis response, stabilization and intervention. We go to the person in need, so that the individual can remain in a comfortable environment. Our timely response and intervention reduces the risk of the crisis escalating, and is an alternative to hospitalization.

WHEN TO CALL

- If you or someone you know is experiencing a mental health or substance use crisis
- If a situation seems to be out of control and you need immediate access to mental health professionals
- If you or someone you know is threatening to harm anyone, including yourself

HOW WE HELP

The Mobile Crisis Response Team provides a number of integrated services including:

- Evaluation of immediate need for crisis/emergency services (telephone triage)
- Crisis intervention and/or assistance in de-escalating the situation
- Risk assessment and evaluation for more intensive services
- Short-term crisis management until other supports/services are in place, or the crisis is resolved
- Liaison between individual, families, health care providers and emergency services
- Coordination of appropriate community-based services for ongoing treatment and follow up

WHO CAN CALL

We accept self-referrals, as well as referrals from family and friends, health care providers and those in the community—essentially any person concerned about the well being of another.

This program serves the adult population, including DMHAS, DMR, DCF and the elderly in:
